California Council for the Social Studies Conference
March 13-15, 2026
Garden Grove, CA

SEEKING GREAT PARTNERS

The California Council for the Social Studies is excited to open our call for proposals and invitation for exhibitors and sponsors for the 65th annual conference.

The CCSS Annual Conference is the largest gathering of K-12 social studies classroom teachers, college and university faculty members, curriculum designers and specialists, district and state social studies supervisors, and social studies discipline leaders in the state of California.

OUR VISION / MISSION

California Council for the Social Studies (CCSS) is a non-profit professional organization serving both public and private school educators. We represent the leading voice for quality social studies education in California, committed to strengthening the teaching and learning of history-social studies through standards-based professional development, resource sharing, and public awareness and advocacy through strategic partnerships at the local, state and national levels.

We want our students to understand the value and fragility of our democracy, develop a keen sense of ethics and citizenship, and care deeply about the quality of life in their communities, nation, and world.

SEEKING GREAT PARTNERS

We are excited to host hundreds of presenters who will share their innovative ideas and instructional strategies that align with this year's theme: Local Roots, Global Reach. As a participant in our

This theme recognizes that powerful social studies instruction starts with the local: the histories, cultures, and issues of our neighborhoods, cities, and states. When students investigate their local context—whether through civic engagement, oral histories, place-based inquiry, or regional case studies—they build a foundation of relevance and connection. These "local roots" are the entry point to broader inquiry, helping students see how their experiences and communities intersect with national and global systems.

Exploring local roots prepares teachers and students for extending learning outward to examine global reach of policy and action. Students are empowered to grapple with global issues such as climate change, migration, human rights, economic interdependence, and democratic participation. Through critical thinking, historical analysis, and cross-cultural understanding, students develop the knowledge and skills to become active participants in an interconnected world.

Whether you're teaching kindergarteners about community helpers or high schoolers about international relations, this strand celebrates the full K-12 spectrum of social studies education. Join us as we share strategies, stories, and resources that help students root deeply in their local identities while reaching for a more just and informed global future.

CODE OF CONDUCT

The California Council for the Social Studies (CCSS) is an inclusive organization dedicated to advancing history and social science education. Our strength lies in fostering a vibrant forum where diverse identities and perspectives come together to build community, engage in research, share practices, reflect, and collaborate. We promote civil dialogue and professional growth—values that are especially critical in today's complex educational landscape.

We expect all conference participants to:

- Create welcoming spaces where all individuals feel valued and included.
- Maintain professional discourse that is respectful and constructive.
- Support inclusive discussions that unite and strengthen our educational community.

We ask that all participants actively contribute to creating a safe, welcoming, and inclusive environment. Discrimination, harassment, and sexual harassment of any kind are strictly prohibited.

All participants must - including, attendees, speakers, proposal authors, sponsors, scholarship recipients, volunteers, reviewers, conference staff, and vendors - shall comply with the instructions of conference organizers, event staff, presenters and moderators. No Participants shall record, transmit, copy, or take screenshots of presentations, sessions or events without advance consent of the presenter/speaker.

This Code of Conduct applies to all aspects of the CCSS Conference, including:

- Conference sessions and workshops
- Planning meetings and committee gatherings
- Informal discussions and side meetings associated with the conference
- Interactions on social media platforms, email discussion lists, and other online or electronic communications
- Social events, networking functions, and other related activities

Anyone asked to stop conduct that violates this Code of Conduct is expected to comply immediately. Violations may result in enforcement actions, up to and including removal from the conference without refund.

By participating in the CCSS Conference, you agree to uphold these standards and contribute to a professional, respectful, and inclusive environment for all.
